What are our greatest strengths in supporting our children with special educational needs?

Constant assessments and changing measures accordingly.

Full understanding of all my son's needs and welfare.

By giving them the confidence they can achieve anything.

Really good at being able to approach the leaders and other staff if we're having problems.

What we could we improve to support our children with special educational needs?

I have no suggestions – my son gets all the support he needs.

Nothing I can say.

Think more understanding about autism and girls with autism and how they mask in school because they don't always express this and don't have meltdowns in the class. They hide their autism.

What are the 3 most important issues we should address linked to supporting our children with special educational needs and their parents.

Updates for parents, regarding educational progress more often.

Not making children feel 'excluded' or different.

Their behaviour outside of school.

Nothing that I know of.

More regular updates on progress.

Awareness of autism in girls and how it differs from boys.

Training of TAs/Teachers for dealing with and teaching children with autism.

Supporting parents and listening to them.

Any other comments?

I am over the moon with the support my child and I have received since he has attended this school.

I really think Wilburton CofE school is a great school and does a lot for the children. They do lots of activities and encourage good behaviour but think they need to give more help and support to children with special needs.
